

DRAMATIC ENTERTAINMENT GREAT SUCCESS

The second public entertainment sponsored by the Strathmore Dramatic Club was quite an ambitious undertaking and the success achieved is very gratifying to the promoters.

A large number attended and that the various plays held the close attention of all, was evidenced by the general and frequent applause.

The Plays covered a very wide field.

1. Play: Maddalena, A Play from the Land of Fantasy.
2. L'Homme Qui Epousa une Femme Muette. (The man who married a dumb wife). A Play from the Middle Ages.

3. Followers. An adaptation from Cranford of mid-Victorian period.

4. Suppressed Desires. A Modern Satire.

We have been asked to give not only but a fair criticism of the Players and so with admitted limitation, we proceed.

Taking the last Play presented first, Suppressed Desires, Presented by the Dramatic Club and directed by Mrs. French and Dr. Giffen. One's criticism can be a high eulogy. This Play was exceedingly well given. The Players looked and acted quite at home living normally their respective parts. Mrs. White as the wife fully absorbed in and imbued with the great good of Psycho-Analysis, for everyone in every instance, irrespective of the result, desired to see Mrs. Florence Brewster to distraction, and almost breaks up the erstwhile hapless of their home.

On the arrival of her sister Mabel who comes for a visit, she at once brings in her obsession of Psycho-Analysis, with the inevitable result. As long as the result of these influences remains in the abstract, all is well and she pursues her obsession with unabated zeal, but when the effect becomes concrete, then there is a different story to tell.

Norman Ellis acted the part of the distressed husband exceedingly well, and Mrs. White by voice and manner forcefully portrayed her keen obsession.

With Gladys Pescodone one forgets she is impersonating, so fully does she enter into the spirit of the character she is representing. One is quite prepared to overlook her occasional forgetfulness of the line, by the general excellence of the Play. By general consensus of opinion, her was the most, Suppressed Desires was the most cleverly performed of the four Plays presented.

In choosing a Play the question arises as to whether you wish one possessing a lot of action or one which dramatizes a choice piece of literature with little action, well combined. In the second class is Followers, a Play adapted from the novel Cranford. This Play was put on by the Strathmore High School, and directed by Miss Gordon and Mr. Crowther. The Play called for very little action, the point having to be "put over" by vocal expression and emphasis. The two principal characters in the piece were, Col. Redfern (Graham French) and Miss Baines (Lucy (Alice May)). That these two young players told their story in such a way that the audience could not fail to grasp the repeated proposal and the repeated refusal signifies the force of their verbal attack. Whether you agree with them or not, you have said "No" after 25 years and accepted the stolid attitude and stern significance of life depends not on the actors on the stage but the actors in the audience.

Margaret Freeman as Helen Masters and Mary Davidson as Susan performed their parts equally well. They were particularly feminine in their views and looked most winsome.

The unfolding of the story was very attractive and evidenced a close attention to minute detail, as did the costumes. In Lucy's make up the gray shadings on her face had been better omitted. The blush with which the audience followed could be felt and evidenced in the force of the acting.

L'Homme Qui Epousa une Femme Muette. (The man who married a dumb wife), presented by the Dramatic Club and directed by Mrs. Florence Garrett, required the largest cast of the four.

There was the Judge Frederic Ridley, his wife Alice Garrett, a lawyer Don Nichol, a doctor, Andrew Garrett, two servants in the Judge's household, Bernice Wattleside and Nick Chamberlain, and the Doctor's assistants, Gerald Van Tighem and Norman Ellis. The costumes and staging were effective and very appropriate, and the make up so natural as not to attract attention. The Doctor's assistants evidenced the truth of the saying, "They also serve who only must stand wait."

The parts of the two servants the minor were very well taken, evidencing a repressed dignity, in their devotion to their master. The part of the Judge and the mistress he wife for the affliction of his wife, were well depicted. The lawyer acted as the emissary for the Judge in bringing up the subject of the doctor's arrival. At the behest of the author it remained for the Doctor in his laconic, unprofessional advertising of his medical ability and conceding a medical use of technical terms to ridicule the medical profession by his glib recital of humanity's ailments, his diagnosis of them and his equally glib cure.

The rapidity with which these learned and difficult terms rolled forth must have required much practice before the recital could be made, with such volubility. That the operation on the wife proves a cure rather than a blessing and makes the victims thereof willing to let their being helped rather than be harassed by the constant chatter of the wife evidence the creditable production. As it was that it is better to live in a corner of the house top than in a wide house with a brawling woman. The lines were well sung and the stage furnishing very effective.

Slower speech on the part of some would have strengthened an otherwise creditable production. As it was much of the play's humor was lost to the audience, by the too rapid delivery.

Poor Maddalena, was presented by Ardene Community and directed by Alice Garrett and Norman Ellis. This Play was a very artistic stage, with rose streamer tints, revealed which with the fairy like costumes of the players, made a picture worthy of a picture. The players are Pierrette and Maddalena, Vera Sarsons, Pierrot and Paolo, Wilfred Sherman and Bunka. The play is a story of life in the Land of Fantasy; then their adventure into the realm of earth despite the warnings of Bunka. Here they find life does not differ greatly and is not one unbroken dream of bliss and they return again to the realm of earth.

It was a picturesque play, entertainment. In the first scene the players were in the Land of Fantasy, but this was remedied in the second and third. It would have helped greatly the voice coming over, had the actors used the audience more directly. The too brilliant make up detracted from an otherwise prettily staged Fantasy.

Vera Sarsons was the recipient of a pretty bouquet of flowers.

Mr. W. McKenna assisted by Max Wells, Andrew Garrett, and Ken Wright, was stage manager and this effective work added greatly to the success of the presentation.

The following excellent musical programme was given at the interval between acts.

Mr. G. H. Patrick sang in very good form. The Green Ezed Dragoon; Ghost Hired in a Castle Grey; The Lamerick; The Yiddisher Irlab; With Miss Garret accompanying.

Mr. J. Gannon gave solos on both the Clarinet and Saxophone with Mrs. Hirtle at the piano.

The last U P A meeting was held at the home of James Reizle, President. The large crowd affords the keen interest in U P Affairs is still keen.

The musical club met Monday evening at Mrs. French's home.

The V P S were entertained Sunday evening at the home when a pleasant time was enjoyed.

Patrick for the Easter Festival, with Miss Violet Hyde at the Organ; it hopes to make a feature of Joseph Lewis setting for the Lord's Prayer, and of the Easter Anthem, Pelham Humphrey. The Hymns are largely old favourites.

H. Knecht. Services will be at the usual hours with additional opportunities for the hymn singing, and 9.15 at Nightingale and Chancel for Service at 3.30.

MUSIC—All one's life is music if one touches the notes rightly and in tune.—Ruskin.

With practically all of the rural sections of the province still blanketed with snow of varying depth, Alberta is experiencing one of the latest spring seasons in its history. Work of any kind on the land will be delayed for another ten days at least while seeding operations can scarcely be commenced much before May 1st, from two to three weeks later than in 1934.

The late spring conditions are causing no anxiety in agricultural circles, however. In fact, conditions at present are the most promising in some years, not only by reason of the well-

SOCIAL CREDIT

FATHER OF MR. O'MURRAY OF STRATHMORE, DECEASED

The death occurred in an Edmonton hospital March 19th of Mr. Thomas O'Murray, father of Mr. R. O'Murray of Strathmore, in his 84th year.

The late Mr. O'Murray came from Scotland to Canada about 23 years ago. He was very highly respected by a large number of friends, who will recall his progressive and helpful activities in all worthy work.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Paine and Rev. Dr. Paine from Jacques Funeral Home. Interment took place in Calgary.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Stoddard of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Stubbings, Durban South Africa and five sons, Robert in Chicago, Thomas in Vancouver, D. P. in Edmonton, A. B. in Calgary and Duncan O'Murray in Strathmore.

A cordial invitation is extended to everyone.

As the Session draws to a close it is interesting to review some of the high lights of the programme.

During the year ending March 31st, $71 million dollars were agreed by the Canadian Government. The larger items were interest on debt $28.12 millions, War pensions $2 millions, Old Age Pensions $14 millions, care of returned soldiers 10 millions, subsidies to provinces 15 millions, Agriculture 7 millions, Indian Affairs 5 millions, Pen-sionaries $2 millions, National Insurance 14 millions, Post Office 20 millions and Public Works 10 millions. There is a revenue from the Post Office of $21,850,000 so that a profit is made. There are other Public Works as relief measures not included in the above.

The revenue of the Dominion Government is enormous even in these days of depression. Here are some of its items: Customs import duties 27 millions, This was 121 millions in 1929, Excise duties 44 millions, Income tax 65 millions, Sales tax of 5 per cent yields 72 millions, Stamp and Transportation tax 29 millions and the Gold tax 4 millions. There is also a revenue from what is called Non-tax revenue 5.8 millions, Interest on Investments 11 millions and Income Reserves 13 millions. A further unusual fact is that the profits of the Canada Grain Act amount to $2,710,000. The Government pays heavily for administering the various services but the grain growers pay for inspection of its product.

Every year, lately, there have been fires in Alberta. There is a greater feeling of optimism and confidence among the farmers, due to the promising spring outlook, and to the increasingly better prices for products and improved market conditions generally. Though the winter has been a hard one, it has not been particularly hard upon the stock, except sections which have been, and still are, suffering from shortage of feed, in which areas there is a considerable number of cattle in poor condition. The continually satisfactory market for hogs, coupled with the medium spring revival of the American market for good beef cattle, has put new heart into the live stock interests of the province, and hope is held out that the revived market for cattle will develop into a more permanent condition. Since the beginning of the winter season, which will not be 5 years since the present members were elected. There cannot be another Session until an election is held. No one knows what date the appeal will be made but, in all probability, it will be held before the cold weather commences, any further are being considered, as Mr. John Macdonald has said. No man can forecast the result of an election or a horse race!

It is interesting to note that a Brain Trust of 15 men to advise the Prime Minister, an Unemployment Insurance Bill, a Minimum Wage Bill, a Weekly Day of Rest Bill, a four-day, not for industrial purposes. A Grain Board will be set up and the more free trade policy will be given more force.

If we are to have a definite National Union and if that thing is to come to pass, we must have a Brain Trust of 15 men to advise the Prime Minister, an Unemployment Insurance Bill, a Minimum Wage Bill, a Weekly Day of Rest Bill, a four-day, not for industrial purposes. A Grain Board will be set up and the more free trade policy will be given more force.

Miss Jessie Grant was visiting her parents for a few days last week.

Harold Larsen happened to stray in to the Craiganter and got stuck in the mud the night before his wedding. A little nerve would have pulled him through, but he lost what he had and left the young lady sitting in the car in the mud. Carl shows came to the rescue and relieved the palpitation.

The weather lately has been unusual and red is scarce and stock is feeling it.

The Charrand arrived home after a honeymoon of two weeks visiting in outgrowth. A number of friends gathered and gave the bride and groom a welcome home. Some played cards and some danced and all had a good time. At midnight a nice lunch was served all enjoying same. Had the roads been good there would have been a lot more. Henry Danksworth gave a talk on Social Credit.

GOOD FRIDAY AND EASTER

Good Friday and Easter Sunday commemorative events of such great contrast as to mark the very saddest and most human despair and exultation.

Good Friday the little band of His Christ in His agony, crucified and Him on Whom they had placed their faith dying an ignominious death on the Cross. As a consequence they are plunged in deepest despair.

With the dawn of Easter Sunday comes another revelation. Their Christ is risen, and their mourning is turned to rejoicing. The miracle of the ages has taken place, and their hopes again reach Euphrasian heights. The world today seems to be passing through the dark and troubled hours of Good Friday.

Individual families, nations are beset with problems and the spectre of unemployment, hunger, perplexity and hope deferred hang heavy over an all too large number of the human race.

May it be true, we must fervently hope, that the dawn of a brighter tomorrow is very very near. That our legislators and statesmen will come soon to place the proper value on human life, not on profit making. So soon shall this earth become a fit and happy place in which to dwell, and the kingdom of heaven established on earth.

THE WEEK IN THE LEGISLATURE

Edmonton, Alta.—The Alberta Legislature will close its session this week. It is expected prorogation will take place about Wednesday or Thursday at the latest as Friday will be Good Friday and the members will all want to be home for Easter.

Legislation is being speeded up every day now, and while there are no very lengthy speeches being delivered in the discussion of various bills before the house, there is no lack of talk even so near the end.

Most of the legislation introduced has been of an amending character to bills already on the statute books, but some important new legislation has also been enacted. Perhaps the two most interesting bills have been those dealing with debt reduction for the farmers and methods of cultivation to control and cure soil drifting. The new health insurance bill, also finds a place with the new measures that mark the session as a constructive one.

During the past week whole days have been given up to the consideration of bills and a large number out of the ninety old measures introduced have been rolled through the debating ways of first, second and third reading.

Everything points to a winding up of business and the next thing is plans for the coming elections, the date for which will be somewhere in the last part of June. If present indications are to be reckoned with.

A private bill introduced by C. A. Tomlinson, M.P.A. of Canmore, which would make it compulsory for all teachers in the province to become members of the Alberta Teachers' Association, or a similar organization, aroused considerable interest. Mr. Tomlinson in sponsoring the bill explained that the teachers desired to have their calling placed on the footing of a profession in the province, he said it would increase co-operation between the department and teachers and also between the teachers and the trustee boards.

The measure was opposed by two cabinet ministers, Hon. Perry Baker, minister of education, and Hon. Geo. Howland, minister of health, telephones and trade and industry, expressed opposition to the bill for differing reasons. The bill will go into committee.

Another bill that aroused considerable discussion when it came up for second reading was a bill regarding the reporting of judicial cases in the courts by the newspapers. The object of the bill is to prevent the newspapers from publishing matter regarded as libelous, or that might influence the course of justice during a trial.

An attempt to have the bill given a hoist for six months was made by the Liberals in an amendment which was defeated by a vote that included members on all sides of the house.

An adjournment of the discussion was agreed upon, so as to give the representatives of the newspapers their present objections before the agricultural committee. This was done Monday morning when the agricultural committee heard the publishers' side of the argument. It will be further debated when it comes before the house for final reading.

Perhaps one of the most important bills from the standpoint of the farmers, to come before the house was that dealing with methods of cultivation to promote control of soil drifting. It provides for compulsory strip farming and the planting of tree belts along the property of the farmer on the side from which the prevailing winds come. There was some opposition to this measure on the part of a few members, but the majority thought it would be of great value to agriculture in the province. Hon. F. S. Grisdale, minister of agriculture said it would lay the groundwork for a rehabilitation scheme that would greatly benefit the agricultural industry in Alberta.

OTHER VIEWS ON SOCIAL CREDIT

A good deal of criticism has been directed against Mr. Aberhart for mixing religion with politics but Mr. Aberhart or any other leader has the highest precedent for bringing his religion into the marketplace and little more religion in politics would be far from a disadvantage.

From now until the election the campaign will grow hotter, and the Aberhart movement will have to stand up with the other parties and take its share of abuse. Many of its adherents follow in the tradition of all reform movements before them, like the ground that all who are not with them have no interest in social credit or in the welfare of the country. No man. Nothing could be further from the truth and the remark of one of the speakers at the meeting in Calgary on Friday evening that all who did not support them were against social credit was very wide of the mark. The Advocate has no hesitation in saying that some of the best informed men in Canada on the social credit movement, and some of its strongest supporters, are in the ranks of the C.P.A., the C.C.P., and the Canadian Labor movement. Wm. Irvine, M.P.; G. G. Coote, M.P. and many others are heartily in favor of social credit, and have been working for its adoption on a Dominion scale.

ever since their entry into the Federal house. The C.P.A. is emphatically in favor of social credit, and is so on record. The present provincial government has once the length of asking the advice of the leading authority, Major C. H. Douglas, who will come to Alberta next month to get an audience with the government. In the face of these facts it cannot be truly said that a belief in the Aberhart proposals is essential to a belief in social credit. For many years the Advocate has favored the proper use of the credit of the people of Canada for the benefit of the people of Canada and while it does not favor Mr. Aberhart's proposals, it is certainly in favor of social credit, and there are thousands of Canadians within and without the province who hold similar views. The newly formed party represents but one view of social credit. Mr. Aberhart's and it must be judged on that basis. Redford Advocate.
